

Brain-Health Longevity Procedure

Extending the Health of your Brain

If given a choice most individuals would rather not live without their brain functions intact. Losing everything you know, everyone you love, and even who you are is much scarier to most people than death itself. To make things even worse, the latest statistics say the average Alzheimer's patient lives 10 years and the cost of keeping that patient alive is a minimum of $100,000.00 a year. Double that if you want quality of life care. When they take the average percent of people that come down with Alzheimer's and then factor the millions of baby boomers that will enter that equation there is not enough money anywhere in the US to care for the number of patients that will develop Alzheimer's over the next 10 to 20 years. So if you develop Alzheimer's and don't have well over a million dollars in the bank, what do you think will happen to you? Ask someone that grew up in any country that has had government controlled health insurance for years like we are now beginning, you may be shocked.

This health procedure could be the best health insurance anyone could ever buy and even if you only delay the degeneration by a few years it will still be the best investment you ever made.

Anything you could do to decrease the chance of developing any number of conditions that create dementia should be high on any person's priority list. And the time and resources you spend to prevent or retard the development of these types of neurological conditions is time and money very well spent. Especially if you spend that time performing procedures that are scientifically documented to improve the function and health of your brain.

True Low Level Laser Therapy has been documented to support the brain in many different ways and is currently the best way I know of to help prevent or retard the development of different forms of dementia.

Brain degeneration and dementia does not just have a single cause but a myriad of stresses, traumas and toxins that contribute to the overall loss of function and health. And these causes do not just occur as the symptoms of dementia occur, they begin many years prior to any of the signs. Therefore it is important for you to begin as early as possible to repair, detoxify, and restore the function of your brain.

We know that by performing a single procedure a couple times a week while you are watching TV, working on your computer or even sleeping can significantly improve the function and reduce the chances of developing these degenerative neurological conditions.

The LazrPulsr 4X Mk III Therapy System has several programs that will support the brain and central nervous system in a number of ways. Each of these programs address different injuries and stresses that can occur to the brain including:

- General energy and function of the brain.
- Clearing damage to the energy fields around the brain caused by toxic energy radiation that we are all exposed to everyday. (Cell phones, EMFs, monitors, Wi-Fi, etc.)
- Balancing structure to maintain proper communication within the nervous system.
- Detoxifying the neurotoxins that are in our everyday foods. (Excitotoxins & Diet Sweeteners)
- Helping resolve and manage the emotional stress that we encounter every day.
- Helping the body heal from traumatic brain and spinal injuries that occur much more often than you may think.

The following treatment record form will help you keep track of your therapy to help maintain a healthier brain and nervous system for years to come. This treatment record covers 9 months of care. Perform each of these 10 to 11 programs at least one time each month. The Therapy Card for program #603 Mild TBI (Traumatic Brain Injury) is included in your therapy system. The Therapy cards for the Sensitivity protocol and Sensitivity protocol may be purchased from LazrPulsr System.

We also highly recommend taking the Inositol supplement to support this program. Either from Standard Process labs or an equivalent product.

Utilizing the GOM Detox protocol will also assist in brain longevity and we highly recommend it for everyone.

For optimum Brain Health perform each of these 10 therapy programs 1 time a month.

The two Protocol Cards, Sensitivity and Intolerance are optional and can be purchased from LazrPulsr System.
