

Incorporating Natural Energy Medicine into your Practice. Dementia

(Part 17)

Dementia patients are the most difficult patients you will ever treat. The reason for this is the best time to treat dementia is before the symptoms begin. Prevention is difficult to sell in our society as we were trained to only treat what is symptomatic at the time. However, people buy insurance for everything and spend a great deal of money and time trying to protect what they have from potential loss so they are not against the concept of prevention, it is just not thought of in the concept of health care.

I am told that of all the things a person can potentially lose, they will miss their mind the most. So now instead of a health care provider you need to change hats and be an insurance sales person. You need to ask is your brain insured for loss. If not, why? We have the latest therapy support back by the latest scientific research as effective in maintaining the function of your brain. We call it the Mk III Brain Longevity insurance protocol.

And like all insurance sales personnel you have to ask "What is the cost for not spending the time and money to insure the function of your brain?" Then let them know the odds that you can lose it are. I am told that it costs a minimum of $100,000.00 to keep an Alzheimer's patient alive and about twice that to provide quality of life care. And that the average life span of someone once they enter a home is about 10 years. I have also heard that when they factor the number of baby boomers that are reaching the age where Alzheimer's is expected and the percent of people that contract that disease that in 10 to 15 years there will not be enough money anywhere in the government to care for these patients. So if you don't have a couple a million dollars stashed away you should be doing something about your brain now before it's too late.

Again this is the type of program that should be performed on a regular basis on every member of the family for the rest of your lives. That's why they are primarily designed for the Mk III Home or professional therapy systems.

Don't wait for the dementia symptoms to start because if it is true dementia then it is from actual brain cell death and cannot usually be recovered from. However there are many different functional imbalances of the brain that can mimic true dementia that can be corrected so don't ever think that a patient is beyond hope without first trying Natural Energy Medicine.

How many of your patients might be interested in insuring their brain against loss. You will never know until you ask.
