Autism

(Part 18)

Autism is out of control. As early in 2015 it was reported that 1 in 65 children are severe enough to be diagnosed with Autism. Soon it will be rare to have a child without some degree of Autism and we may be close to that already. With a condition that is increasing at this alarming rate, who is looking for the reason why? We hear a lot about research on how to treat it but nothing about what causes it so that it can be prevented. Unfortunately when health care became more of a business than a profession many things changed. In health care the money is in treating your patient and research in more ways to treat. If you prevent a disease or condition from occurring that is like losing several million clients in business. There is no money in prevention, only in treatment which is why they only talk about new forms of treatment but never promote new discoveries in why diseases occur or how to prevent new cases from occurring. Why prevent a multibillion dollar business?

Autism like most neurological conditions is very difficult to correct, but much easier to prevent with proper prenatal and early infant care. One of the reasons that it is difficult to find a cause for this condition is that there is seldom one cause for it but many and usually it takes a combination of two or more of those causes to occur to actually create a significant case of autism. Many people have claimed that their child developed autism following child hood immunizations. Medial research then claims that it has researched this in depth and found no relationship between immunizations and autism. I assure you that even I could structure a research program that would prove immunizations had no relationship to autism but it would only be true if you followed the guides of the study. In real life it will never hold true. This is a significant problem with research or any general pole or study. You can structure the study in many ways and depending on how the study is structured you can dictate whatever results you want.

Next to perform a study to meet the strict guides of a medical research study you are required to have a control group. Since every child is immunized where will you find the control group of non-immunized children for the study? Based on my experience over the past 40 years of practice I personally believe that immunizations are one of the causes of autism. But it almost always takes other causes to set up the child to be vulnerable to the immunization. So what are the other causes? Energy corruption from all of the toxic forms of energy that we have spoken of in previous articles. Prenatal abuse from toxic prenatal vitamins to multiple unnecessary ultrasounds, to malnutrition and the list goes on and on.

How do you prevent autism? By removing as many of the causes as possible. Even reducing any of the causes even a small amount will drastically reduce the risk of developing any health condition including autism. So avoid as many causes as possible and treat those causes that you can. Natural Energy Medicine can treat many of the energy and radiation pollutants. Proper diet and supplementation can correct many malnutrition causes and never perform diagnostic tests or imaging that is not absolutely required for the health of the mother or child. Will this guarantee that you will not have an autistic child, NO. Will it significantly reduce the risk of having an autistic child? I think YES.

Can you help your pregnant patients significantly reduce their risks of having an autistic child? I believe you can. And if you don't do this for your patients, who will? Quality prenatal care is vital for a healthy child and mother. Oh yes, we have not even mentioned the health of the mother yet. The health of the mother and the child are usually closely related. It is difficult to imagine that you can have a healthy mother and a sick newborn and even harder to imagine having a sick mother and a normal healthy newborn child. Prenatal care is just as much for the health of the mother as it is for the health of the child. All of the significant health issues that can occur to the mother during and after delivery of a child can be minimized with proper prenatal care.

The Autism protocol developed for the LazrPulsr Therapy system is part of any autism recovery protocol but can also be utilized to help prevent any potential neurological condition in the child and mother.

Do you actively promote a prenatal health care program for all of your pregnant patients? Do you actively promote a fertility health care program for all of your patients that are looking to get pregnant? And this is not just limited to the mothers. Prior to pregnancy the father also plays a role in the health of the child especially if there is difficulty in the mother getting pregnant or staying pregnant.

Fertility clinics are rising up all over the country because the general health of both men and women are declining to the point where having children is becoming very difficult for many couples. Those alternative health providers that get started in this form of health care are so successful that once they get started in this field of care they seldom have time for anything else and seldom want to do anything else because the rewards of this care are so amazing.
